

Process of Curriculum Design and Development:

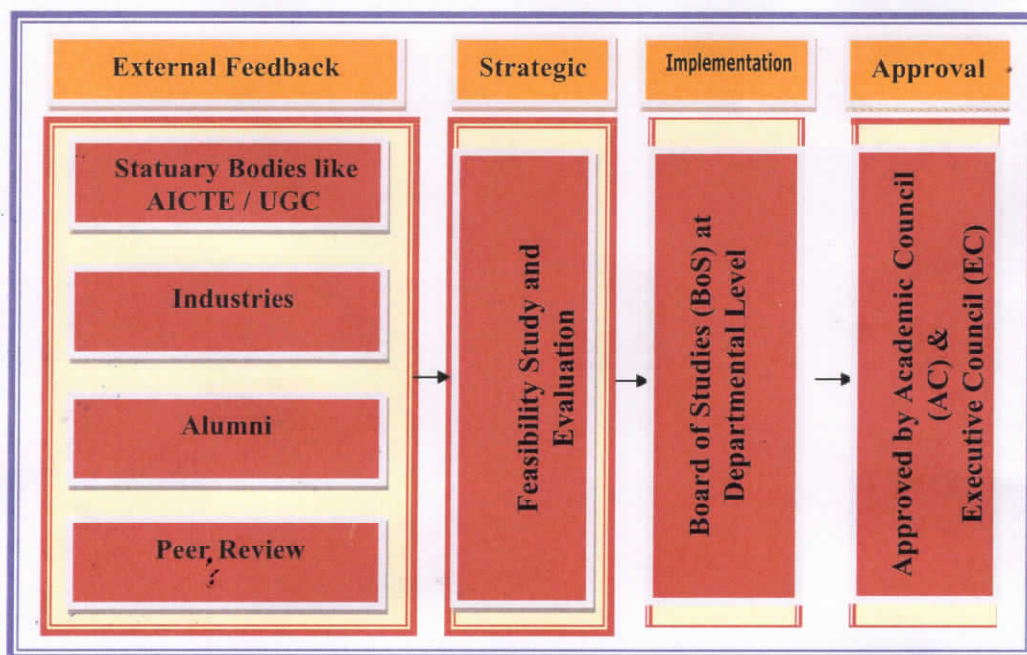

The academic programmes have been broadly developed to achieve the vision and mission statements of the institute. Various programmes of the university have been selected after wide range of consultations with all the stake holders keeping the vision and mission statements as the guiding principle.

Yes, the university follows a systematic process in the design and development of the curriculum. The University meticulously develops action plans for effective implementation of the curriculum and priority is given to academics.

Being an autonomous body under the guidance of UGC, the university designs the curriculum and syllabus with following objectives:

1. To meet the changing requirement of the industry.
2. Develop students to be industry ready.
3. For developing the entrepreneurial skills of the students.
4. To improve the verbal abilities through rigorous personality development courses.

The process followed by the University can be pictorially represented as:

Constitution and Meeting of the Academic Council - The Council consists of representatives from reputed universities / institute of national importance, industries, and research organizations apart from Vice Chancellor of University. General guidelines from the Academic council on the basis of Institution's Vision and Mission are impetus for the entire process.

Feasibility Study & Evaluation – Before finalizing the curriculum a comprehensive study about the programme for its feasibility is carried out with proper relevant references. In addition the courses are also being evaluated for its implemented.

Formation and meetings of Board of Studies (BoS) of various departments - The BoS members include faculty members from respective department, external member from other department, apart from Department Head and senior faculty members. Informal as well as structured feedback from alumni, students, parents, industry, and employers is taken on periodic basis. Curriculum is reputed institutes like IITs, NITs are also considered. Brain storming sessions are held within the Department about the inputs received from does not suit with discussion, various agencies.

Based on this, Course structure is reviewed and modified every year, new subjects and Labs are introduced as needed. The recommendations of the Department are then forwarded to BoS and subsequently recommendations of the BoS are sent for approval of the Academic Council.

The Executive Council consists of highly qualified senior Professors and industry representatives and the body gives the necessary academic direction and lays down policy matters. All these statutory bodies are formed as per the norms of UGC.

(DEAN ACADEMICS)

Dean-Academic Affairs
GLA University, Mathura (U.P.)